Partner Benefits

Your six key reasons to become an Art UK Partner
Art UK knows how vital commercial revenue is to the nation’s collections, which is why we launched the Art UK Shop in 2016, now used by over 100 collections. This shared platform provides a marketplace for your own merchandise, as well as offering brilliant print-on-demand (POD) products and licensing.

The marketplace format makes the Art UK Shop a destination e-commerce site for shoppers buying a unique cultural gift or updating their interiors with framed prints and homewares. It presents a unique offering: customers may order a print from Manchester Art Gallery, a scarf from Pallant House Gallery and a book from Aberdeen Art Gallery and pay for these in one transaction.

Print on demand is fulfilled by the supplier; licences are granted by Art UK. Crucially, Art UK does not take a share of revenue; all income is split between the collection and our POD supplier, Heritage Digital. We undertake copyright clearance on behalf of collections so that more contemporary works can be added to their POD service. An image licensing service is also available for collections who wish to licence their high-resolution images for a fee through our automated platform.

Collections benefit from dedicated marketing support for their products, including seasonal campaigns, social media content and newsletters. Additionally, you benefit from Art UK’s investment in paid search and social media advertising. We encourage our Partner Collections to link to their e-commerce pages from their own website, social media and customer communications.

The work with our shop and support to sales is critically important

Collection Management

Through our crowdsourcing tool Tagger, your images can be more discoverable through tags (keywords) being attached to your images which makes them more searchable to our 4 million unique users and they can also be included in digital exhibitions, known as Curations. You will also be able to access analytics and research commissioned by Art UK about digital technology and audience behaviour.

We can even provide assistance if you have questions about the artworks in your collection. Our Art Detective service solves art mysteries and provides insight into artworks, delivering over 13,000 updates to collections since its launch.

You may already have your oil paintings and sculptures live on artuk.org but by signing up to become a Partner Collection, you can improve digital engagement with your artworks and add more images of artworks in other mediums.

The Collections team at Art UK provides essential support in helping you to add prints, drawings, oils, acrylics, tempera, watercolours, photographs and sculpture to the Art UK database. Our Copyright and Licensing team complete valuable due diligence and copyright clearance for your artworks that remain in copyright, helping you to share more of your artwork images online. Our Copyright experts can also provide dedicated copyright surgeries and help to put you in contact with rights holders.

Art UK is a great resource for us, as our own image management system is not the best

Marketing your Collection

We want you to be able to showcase your collection to the widest possible audience, which is why we have a range of Partner-only marketing activities that help you deliver meaningful digital engagement. As a digital-only organisation we have extensive experience in building virtual audiences.

Once you join our partnership scheme, you will receive a digital marketing toolkit, including assets such as logos and images. There will also be templates for leaflets and posters that you can personalise to your collection and distribute in venue and online. These are themed around our collaborative seasonal marketing campaigns, meaning you’ll also receive support from Art UK’s social media channels.

We welcome submissions of stories, news and exhibition content for publishing on Art UK. Our content is promoted in our hugely popular weekly newsletter, which has over 26,000 subscribers. Partners may access valuable audience insights via traffic analytics for all such content. Joining in our social media activities, such as the lively #OnlineArtExchange bring simple and effective communications opportunities.

There are exciting opportunities to collaborate with other Art UK partner organisations, such as Bloomberg Philanthropies. Activities include the brilliant Art Unlocked online talk series, featuring presentations from guest curators. A huge number of partners have participated so far, from Aberdeen Art Gallery to Yorkshire Sculpture Park, and we are always looking to invite more to get involved and share their own collection stories.

91% of collections think digital engagement has become more important as a result of the pandemic.
Learning Outreach

Art UK is committed to supporting art in classrooms and during the coronavirus pandemic our online learning resources brought artworks and collections into focus. Our Partner Collections strongly benefit from working with us to develop content for school and lifelong learners.

Partner Collections have the opportunity to upload their own learning resources to Art UK, and feature in our exciting curriculum-linked lesson plans. Your collection can also join in with ground-breaking projects such as Masterpieces in Schools and our latest initiative, the Superpower of Looking.

I feel Art UK are doing a great job; everyone just needs more visibility and easier ways to develop content.

PARTNER COLLECTION SURVEY

58% of collections say that growing learning resources is a key digital engagement priority.
Collaboration lies at the heart of Art UK’s mission, and we understand the support that collections receive from being part of our community. Whether it is taking part in joint social media activities, or helping support each other through our shared retail platform, becoming a Partner means that you benefit from the collective power of our wonderful industry.

By helping to connect collections, Art UK can grow digital audiences for all our partners. Having a shared national resource for all public art collections – promoted collectively – means that we can ensure that the nation’s art receives the engagement it deserves. This doesn’t just happen online; boosting digital engagement also drives in-person visits.

The Bloomberg Connects app is a brilliant example of how collections can bridge the gap between digital and in-person engagement. You can join a host of global galleries in creating a free guide to your collection on Connects, which audiences can use to learn more about your collection as well as planning a visit to your venue.

We’ve valued the spotlight Art UK has been able to shine on our collection during this time, and the conversations it has sparked with other collections.

2020 SURVEY
Making Art UK Sustainable

Art UK was built with the assistance of Arts Council England and with some support from the Scottish Government. To continue to run Art UK, we rely on the support of ACE and private charitable foundations and philanthropists but raising revenue to cover the costs of the project is continually challenging.

Becoming a Partner in Art UK brings shared economic benefits to UK collections. In partnership with over 3,400 participating venues, Art UK has created unique access to the entire collection of the UK’s publicly owned oil paintings and public sculptures. By paying an annual membership fee, collections can help us develop a strong, sustainable, shared digital showcase of UK public art. In return for this institutional support, you will be able to achieve valuable growth in your revenue and digital engagement.

Art UK feels very universal and truly equal in accessibility regardless of where a museum is geographically located, funded or structured.
